Our young friend, Dr. Noah M. Jones, who recently graduated in dentistry, will be united in marriage this week to Miss Ward of Greenville. The REGISTER tenders congratulations and wishes the couple every happiness.

"Uncle Dan" O'Donnell, 80 years of age, now living in Bellevue, made a trip to the valley last Thursday to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Davis, who died at Pilot Knob the day before. Considering his four-score years and ten Mr. O'Donnell holds his own very well, indeed.

B.—"Yes, I am."
S.—"Why?"
B.—"Because you are a d-d hypocrite!"
Curtain.

One of the interesting features at the Gleaners' Bazaar will be a Quilt Contest. There are many persons in the valley who have stored away among their treasures numerous quilts composed of tiny scraps, which they or their mothers or grandmothers pieced and quilted in the far away days of their girl-hood. The Gleaners ask that these beautiful pieces of handwork be brought from their seclusions and used in decorative art at the Bazaar. By a popular vote a first, second and third premium will be bestowed on the exhibitor; said premiums will consist of rosettes of red, white and blue ribbon. Nothing is charged for entering the quilts and they will be returned to respective owners at the close of Bazaar. Persons desiring to enter the contest will send the quilts to Mrs. Wm. Schwab some time before June 25th.

While in Ironton last week in company with Sheriff Fitts, we had the pleasure of meeting several of the county officials, among whom were J. M. Hawkins, circuit clerk, Joseph Royburn, county clerk, John I. Marshall, sheriff and Mr. Damron, prosecuting attorney. All were busy at work and at their posts of duty, and it is our opinion that a better set of county officials can not be found in the State than Iron county has at the present time. Especially do I say this of the gentlemen named above, for I have known them long and know them to be men well qualified for the positions they hold, and a few minutes' time of inspection of their system of keeping the various accounts and records shows that their talent is being exerted toward the advancement and upbuilding of the county of Iron. Also we called on our old friend Eli D. Ake, the venerable Editor of the IRON COUNTY REGISTER, who, assisted by his son, Frank, was busily engaged in printing the annual financial statement of the county.—Centerville Outlook.

Last week the pupils of the Arcadia parochial school gave their parents and friends quite a delightful entertainment, in the college music hall, by elocution, music and song. The minims attracted the most attention by their motion songs. In "What's This?" it required a good deal of attention to find the right fingers at the proper moments, there were so many of them, but the minims found them all right. They all seemed quite willing to dance when "Thumbs up" says he'll dance, and did it. The "Doll's Hospital" was very entertaining to all doll devotees. The terrible ailments of the dolls made them gasp in anxiety, but when all the dolls were cured, smiles returned. The Ethiopian dialogues were also well received. The songs were given in proper harmony, and "America" was sung with youthful enthusiasm, and with gleeful waving of flags. When at the conclusion of the programme the pupils received their prizes: rewards for good conduct, attendance, attention and progress in studies, the pupils concluded that going to the Arcadia parochial school was worth living for. But when in the afternoon at the picnic on the convent grounds, ice creams, cakes and candy—and well, let's stop—then the millenium seemed to be about as near at hand as could be.
